ROMAN FORUM FORO ROMANO

The Forum Coffee Table has a frosted glass top that is hand-painted, and compliments the custom frosted lucite block legs. This table's design was inspired by the Italian Market Forum of Trajan. Much like the channels seen in the Forum's marketplace—we have our frosted lucite blocks running through oak sphere channels. One of the main focal points of function for this coffee table is the hand-painted frosted glass ring around the perimeter of the table. This glass ring is meant to act as a drink coaster.

The Roman Forum became a center for day to day life in Rome. It has been one of the most celebrated meeting places in the world. In modern day society, especially home life; our most celebrated room of meeting is our living rooms. Much like the forum, living rooms have developed gradually and organically from drawing rooms and formal sitting rooms into more social and casual rooms of relaxation.

NOTE: Paint strokes are organic and differ from piece to piece to keep uniqueness in the artists own hand.
